

ABOUT MOVERS

1. Who is the speaker?

The speaker is Salman Rushdie, an emigrant.

2. What theory has he got?

His theory is that the resentment migrants engender is connected with the force of gravity.

3. What does he compare gravity to?

He compares gravity with belonging.

4. What do he think of roots?

He thinks roots are a conservative myth designed to keep people in their places.

5. What are the two ways of looking for freedom?

The narrator uses two verbs to underline freedom: to fly and to flee.

6. What suppositions does he make?

He supposed a pharmaceutical companies might come up with anti-gravity pill.

7. What are the consequences?

The consequences are that the world became an airlines .

8. What would be necessary to devise?

It would be necessary to devise special water-proof flying garments.

9. The connection between gravity and roots.

The connection between gravity and roots is that anti-gravity pills would make migrants us all

10. The best and the worst thing about migrants people

The best thing about migrants is their hopefulness and their worst thing is the emptiness of their luggage.