

Sharing » Media

You Tube At School

Intertextuality offers a range of possibilities to integrate literary text, films, music and ideas. It provides challenges and opportunities to make high and low art interact

You Tube at School

Intertextuality offers a range of possibilities to integrate literary text, films, music and ideas. It provides challenges as well as opportunities to make high and low art interact, as you can see from the example below

A video integrating

- a song by Josh Groban
- some images from Atonment,
- Ian McEwan 's novel.

The video gives proof of aesthetic taste and refined sensitivity. It received plenty of positive feedback. Thank you to Stephanie, the USA student who produced it.

If you like you can interact:

Watch the video

listen to Remember When It Rained Mp3

read the novel

read a review
