An interesting option for tourists is the Maashopper, a boat that plies the Meuse river so that you can see some other towns with the option of biking or walking in the Dutch countryside. The site is in Dutch, but here is a link to a Google translation of the page.

Venlo will host the 2012 Floriade, a flower festival held once every 10 years. 2012 dates are from April 5th to October 7th.

Welcome

Venlo has a population of around 100,000. It's located in green surroundings in Northern Limburg, next to the German border. With the river Meuse running right through its centre from South to North.

Venlo is at the heart of the region. A hub of major highways. Logistics mainport. The centre of knowledge-intensive and manufacturing industries.

It's both urban and rural at the same time.

About Venlo

Venlo is a city with four thriving urban centres, each with its own, distinct character:

Venlo

Venlo is a city with city rights dating back to 1343. A long-established trading centre. Once dormant, but now vigorous and flourishing. A city that is the beating heart of Northern Limburg and one of the major links in European goods traffic.

Blerick is a major residential area and has extensive industry parks.

Tegelen centre of traditional industries.

Belfeld is a small country community with a rural character.
